Welcome Aboard

Parris Island's Iron Mike is depicted carrying a Maxim machine gun over his right shoulder and an M1911 pistol in his raised left hand. The monument was created in 1924 as a memorial to all of the Parris Island graduates who were killed during World War I. The monument was moved from its original site on Parris Island to its current location in front of the Headquarters and Service Battalion Command Headquarters in 1941.

The namesake of our battalion is The Iron Mike statue, which stands as a stark daily reminder to the Battalions Marines, Sailors, Civilian Marines, and families of the sacrifices made during war. The statue represents physical and mental toughness, esprit de corps, leadership, grit in difficult circumstances, and compassion shared among brothers and sisters in arms.

To families and friends, every day, your Marine, Sailor and Civilian Marine of Headquarters and Service Battalion directly contributes to the Depot's mission of MAKING MARINES. When you send loved ones to work: husbands, wives, sisters, brothers, sons, daughters, grandsons, granddaughters, nephews, nieces and friends, they are making a positive difference for Country and Corps – as are you.

The families of our Marines, Sailors and Civilian Marines are an integral part of the daily success enjoyed by the "Iron Mike Team." Your support and well-being are primary motivators to your loved ones as they conduct critical mission support for the Depot and the Marine Corps. Your interest in their work, your involvement in their activities, your safety and understanding of accessible family services is their assurance that enables focus and mission accomplishment.

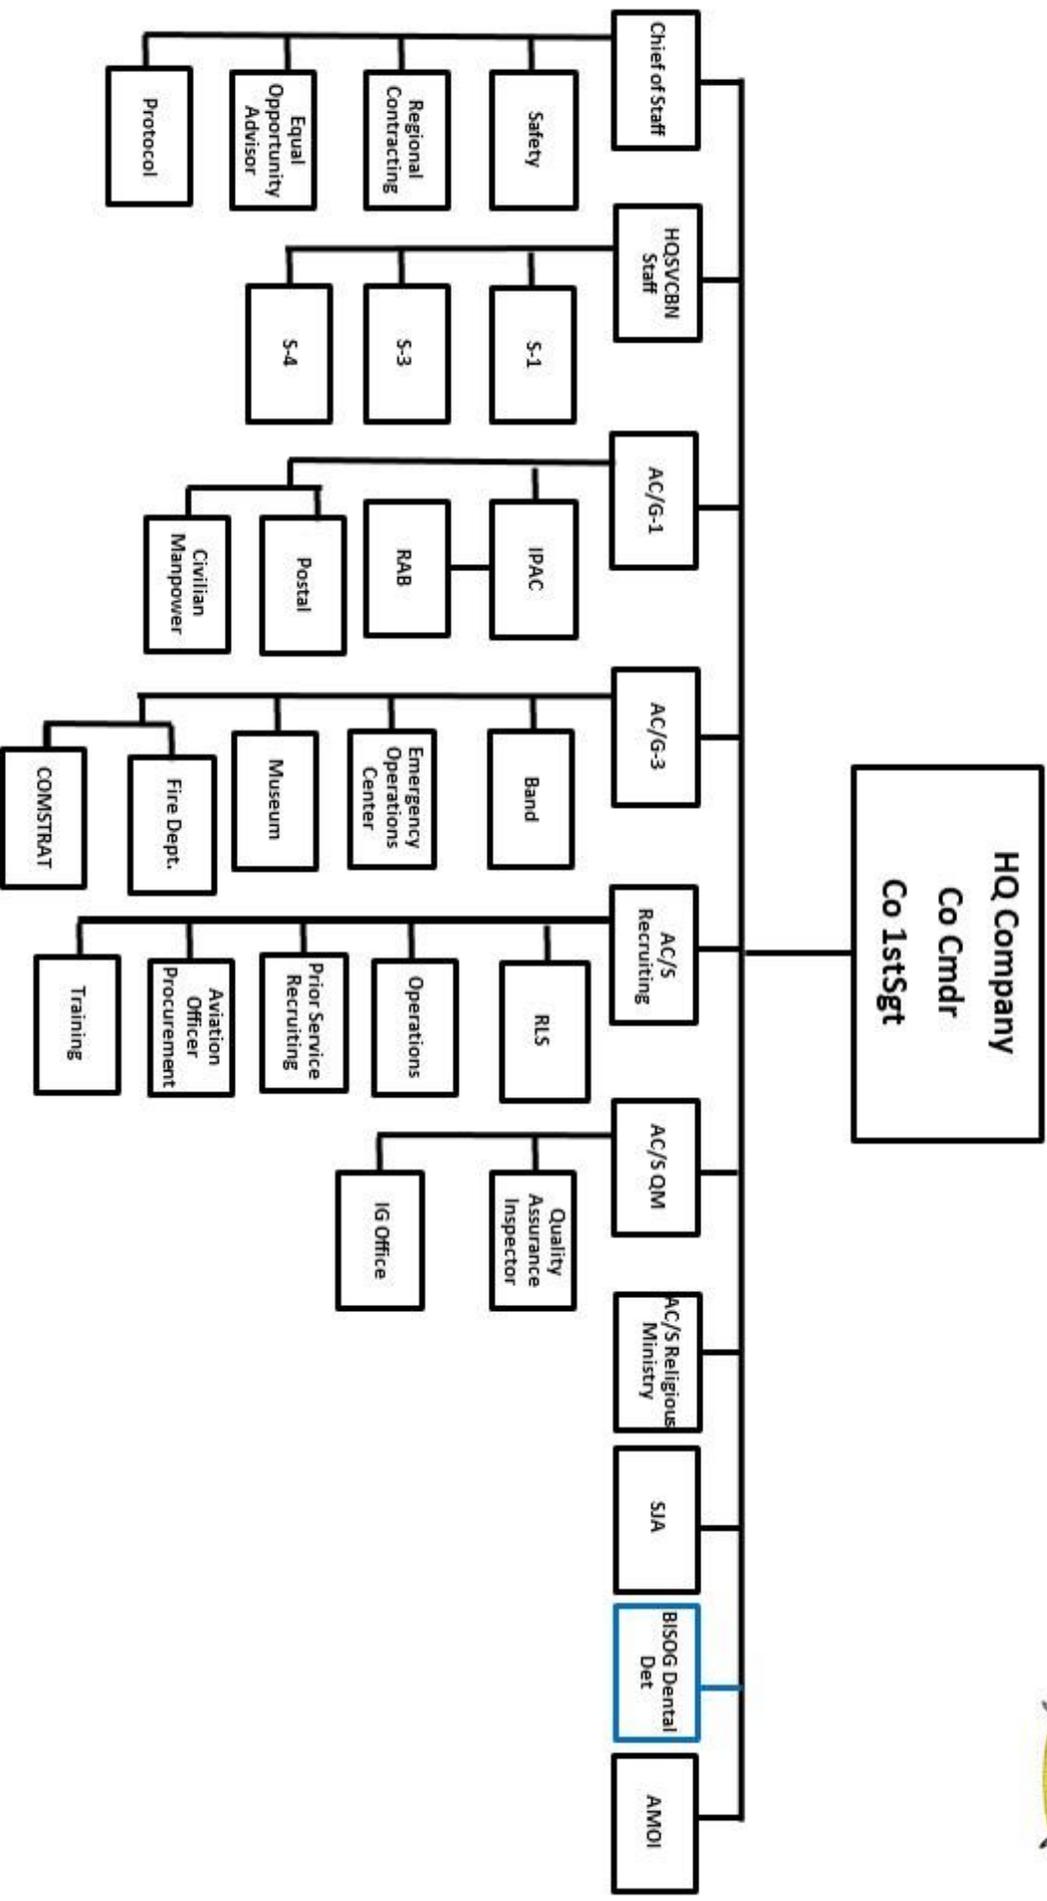

By way of introduction, my name is Colonel Riccoh Player; I'm the Commanding Officer of Headquarters and Service Battalion. Welcome to Parris Island, the second oldest post in the Marine Corps, I look forward to meeting you soon. Enjoy your tour!

Semper Fidelis,

R. T. PLAYER

Marine Corps Recruit Depot— Parris Island Veterinarian

Any Active Duty Military member or family member, and anyone that has Retirement Benefits is eligible for their pet/s to be seen at the Parris Island VTF.

Did you know that pets age faster than we do? Because of this, regular visits to the veterinarian are extremely important. Pets can have health issues and because of this, routine appointments help prevent or make an early diagnosis of any problem.

The Parris Island VTF provides an array of animal health services which include:

- Vaccinations
- Sick-Call Examinations
- Annual Wellness Examinations
- Health Certificates for Travel Abroad
- Base Pet Registration
- Microchip Implantation
- Diagnostic Blood Work
- Flea, Tick & Heartworm Prevention
- Pet Education
